

Built inside the ITEC Complex in Tashkent, the Uzbekistan National Bank General Directorate building (NBU) has a total construction area of 30,000 m². In addition to banking and office areas, the General Directorate building contains a 150-person conference hall, a 250-person restaurant, meeting rooms, a winter garden, a private meeting room, art gallery and fitness center. The building also contains the required technical and administrative units. The 26-storey building is the tallest monolithic reinforced concrete structure in Tashkent, which sits on an active earthquake zone.

The project was provided on a turn-key basis including timely completion of project design services and movable furniture as well as decorations.
